

145.4 670

145.4 P. Giss. I, 40

Gerhard Thür, The dediticii in P.Giss. 40 I 7-9; - Patrick Sänger, Das Problem der "Schutzklausel" in P.Giss. I 40 Kol. I, 8-9: Antwort auf Gerhard Thür.

Kaja Harter-Uibopuu & Werner Riess (edd.), Symposion 2019. Vorträge zur griechischen und hellenistischen Rechtsgeschichte (Hamburg, 26.-28. August 2019) = Akten der Gesellschaft für griechische und hellenistische Rechtsgeschichte. 28 = Österreichische Akademie der Wissenschaften. Philosophisch-historische Klasse. Documenta antiqua - Antike Rechtsgeschichte (Wien, 2021) pp. 501-516; - 517-524.

<https://verlag.oeaw.ac.at/produkt/symposion-2019/99200829>

Holds that the dediticii ([δε]δειτῖκιοι) mentioned in the famous Constitutio Antoninina (P.Giss. 40 I 9) are to be understood as slaves who were severely punished by their masters and afterwards manumitted. The lex Aelia Sentia excluded these freedmen of any kind of Roman citizenship (Gaius, Inst. I 26). This view, so far advanced only by a minority of scholars, seems to be backed now by Macedonian manumission inscriptions. Therefore, the attempt to restore the lacunae in the papyrus according to the tabula Banasitana seems to be misleading. - Réponse de Patrick Sänger.

2021-0445