Emanuela Borgia & Mara Elefante, Un eulogion di San Phoibammon da Antinoupolis.

APapyrol 34 (2022) pp. 205-231, fig.

Examines an unpublished pilgrim flask that was uncovered at Antinoupolis, in the northern necropolis, in 2013. The incomplete ampulla belongs to the typical Aswan production, and preserves a portion of decoration on one side, where the figure of Saint Phoibammon on horseback is represented. The retrograde inscription running along the decorated panel can be integrated as [Εὐλόγιον τοῦ Ἁγίου Φ]οιβάμωνος, whereas the other side is too fragmentary to propose any interpretation.
